HOLLIE McHUGH

Biography

PLAYED in Junior Hockey, 26-31, captain in 29-31. Intermediate and Senior Hockey 29-32. Senior Hockey 32-35. Class President Med. '36 in 31-32, 32-33. Scarlet 33-34, President in 34. Vice-President of the Union 34-35. Med. Representative to Students' Council in 35-36.

McHugh's Platform

ALTHOUGH there are no outstanding problems confronting the Students' Council at the present time, difficulties may arise in the coming year to the solution of which, if elected, I would be guided by the experience which I have gained in other executive positions. I feel that the Students' Council should offer every possible assistance and guidance to all organizations on the Campus and promote all worthy activities in the general good interests of the Students' Society. For example to further the progress and assure the success of the Musical Association I firmly believe that the President of the Association should be elected from among its members.

To dispel the general lack of knowledge and misunderstanding concerning the control and operation of athletics at this University I am convinced that the students should have more adequate representation in the control of athletics and I would do every-

Grill Room Scene Of Annual Function

Spanish Consul Attended Spanish Club Banquet

In a room decorated with Spanish flags the McGill Spanish Club held its annual banquet on Tuesday night. The function attended by about forty people, took place in the Grill room of the Union. Among the guests were Professor and Mrs. Sugars, Senor Roland, the Consul-General of Spain, Senor Carmona, and Mr. and Mrs. Denton, parents of Fred Denton, vice-president of the club.

The first toast to be proposed was that to the King, given by Allison Luke, president of the Club. After this William Sugars, son of Professor Sugars, played two selections at the piano. Professor Sugars spoke briefly about Spain, and at the end of his address proposed a toast to that country. This was responded to by the Spanish Consul-General, Senor Roland, who at the same time handed over to the Professor the books which are to be distributed this year to successful students in the Spanish courses.

Granda, a Spanish student of McGill, then proposed a toast to the Spanish-American countries, which was responded to by Senor Carmona. After an additional piano selection, played by Sugars, Granda again proposed a toast, this time to Canada. Mr. Denton then spoke briefly, commenting on the perfection in Spanish shown by Luke, and praising him for the excellent way he conducted the club this year.

One or two students were asked to address the gathering, to show what they could to the Spanish tongue, but their modesty and dislike of the limelight kept them in their seats. Allison Luke was toastmaster for the evening.

Officers Appointed

Glee Club Chose Executive For Session 1935-36

A meeting of the Glee Club was held in the Union on Tuesday evening at which numbers were rehearsed for several forthcoming concerts.

Among other business the election of officers for next year took place. Elections were as follows: Dave Boyd, President; Bill Hulbig, Vice-President; and Bob Brown, Manager.

Three important concerts for the near future are: Westminster High School tonight, March 7th; at Dominion Douglas Church on March 25th; and a concert is also being planned in conjunction with the R.V.C. Glee Club. In the meantime the Club is working with the Operatic and Choral Society on the Red and White Revue.

Smoker Postponed Until March 30th

OWING to the illness of the Prime Minister, it has been found necessary to postpone the Graduates' Smoker, at which he was to be the guest speaker, to Saturday, March 30.

Mr. Bennett's physicians have absolutely forbidden him to undertake any public speaking engagements for a considerable period of time, and thus he will be unable to speak at the Smoker. As soon as definite word of this decision was received by Dr. Selater Lewis, President of the Montreal Branch of the Graduates' Society, an emergency meeting of the Smoker Committee was called, at which it was decided that there would have to be a postponement.

The committee states that every effort will be made to assure the presentation of the various items originally planned for the program, on the new date.

Plumbers Danced Tuesday Evening At Mount Royal

Howard Simpson's Privateers
Supplied Music
For Ball

By X. B. X.

ABOUT 150 couples danced to the strains of Howard Simpson's Privateers at the annual Plumbers' Ball which took place in the Mount Royal Hotel on Tuesday night. The peppy music, the tasteful decorations and the delicious food all combined to make this annual event one of the best dances held by the undergraduates this year.

Patrons of this year's Plumbers' Ball were Dean and Mrs. Ernest Brown, Professor and Mrs. McKergow and Professor and Mrs. Christie. Representatives from Queen's and Toronto Universities were also present.

Due to the fact that a smaller crowd than was originally anticipated were present, only the piazza was used, both dancing and supper taking place in the smaller room. The walls were festooned with flags of the different Canadian universities and also with banners of the various engineering years since Applied Science '99.

A loud-speaker equipment had been installed with the result that the strains of the Privateers' music was borne to every corner of the room. The melodies of the 11 piece band included several selections from the forthcoming Red and White Revue which were well received by the crowd.

Something novel in the way of a program was presented by the

Ross Speaks Before Sociological Society

To Lecture on Modern Family Friday Night

"The Structure and Functions of the Modern Family and the Changes Involved" will be the subject of Sonnette Ross' address before the Sociological Society at 8.00 p.m. in Strathcona Hall tomorrow night.

The speaker will deal with the rapid changes which are taking place in family life throughout the world at this time. The alteration of the social and economic order not only in Canada but throughout the world is doing a great deal toward this end. State and industrial institutions are assuming many of the functions of the home.

The speaker will indicate several courses which might be adopted in bettering many of the undesirable conditions imposed by these changes.

Dr. E. W. Archibald Given New Honour By Surgical Society

McGill Professor Made Fellow of College of Surgeons

DELIVERED LECTURE

Reviewed Progress of Operative Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis Tuesday

Doctor E. W. Archibald, director of the department of surgery at McGill, was last Tuesday made an honorary fellow of the Royal Australian College of Surgeons, at Melbourne. Dr. Archibald reviewed the progress of the operative treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis, which originated in Germany in 1908 and is now widely practised in Europe and America. He spoke of his own experiences, gathered during extensive practice in thoracoplasty, an extensive operation which eliminates the dangerous cavities which constitute the greatest danger of tuberculosis.

Doctor Archibald, emphasizing the necessity for great judgment in the selection of patients for the operation, said that not more than five per cent of tuberculous patients were suitable subjects. The minor operation by which the nerve neck is cut, thus paralyzing half of the diaphragm and resting the corresponding lung, is applicable in a much larger percentage of cases.

Patient's Condition

Under fairly definite circumstances, he declared, the condition of the patient is greatly improved and sometimes the disease is permanently arrested without endangering life.

Exercising great care in the selection of cases for the major operation, in 40 to 50 per cent of the cases practical cures have been effected, while in three to five per cent of advanced cases mortality takes place.

The speaker stressed the importance of avoiding the graver risks of the operation inasmuch as the disappointments are too frequent to justify the risk.

One Of Many Honors

The honorary fellowship conferred on Dr. Archibald is only one of the many honors that have been awarded the eminent surgeon, who is a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada and an honorary fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in England.

Study Group Holds Gathering Friday

SYLVIA CARDON, Arts '35, and Isadore Dubin, Medicine '38, will lead the discussion on "The Jews as a race, a study of physical and mental characteristics," at the next meeting of the Macabean Study Group. This meeting will be held in the Grill Room of the Union on Friday, March 8th at 8.15 p.m.

A consideration of the Jewish types and their physical and mental traits will be discussed by the speakers, particularly as it bears on the relationship to the question of whether Jews are a pure race or not. The effects of a change of geographical environment on the Jews will also be mentioned, with particular references to the vast Jewish immigration from Eastern Europe to America.

Sylvia Cardon will outline the psychological and mental characteristics of the Jews. Dubin will consider the purity of the Jewish race, its physical characteristics and its predisposition or immunity to various diseases.

Car Loadings on Canadian Railways

Car loadings for the week ending Feb. 16 amounted to 45,299 cars as against 44,680 in the previous week and 40,952 a year ago. Grain was 44 cars heavier than the previous week but 500 below last year. The increase in the eastern division from 29,932 to 30,220 was less than the usual seasonal increase. Grain loading helped to increase the western total from 14,948 to 15,079.

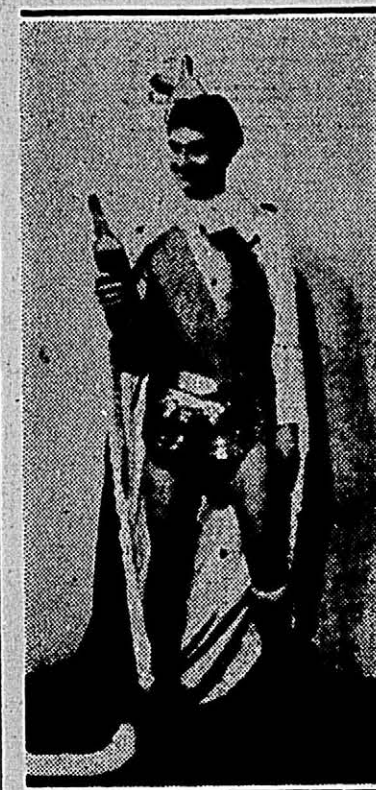

January Imports of Cheese

Imports of cheese in January amounted to about 58,000 lb., 27,000 lb. coming from Italy, 13,000 from the United States, 11,000 from Switzerland, 4,000 from Holland and 3,000 from New Zealand, with smaller amounts from the United Kingdom, Argentina, Denmark, France, Finland, Norway and Syria.

January Imports of Butter

The January imports were small, amounting to less than 6,000 lb. This was far below normal. There were 5,656 lb. from the United Kingdom and 318 from the United States.

'Thirteenth Nightie' Opens Next Wednesday Evening

King Gromadaza XIII, played by Jack Waud, eyes his bottle while Lolo Cook and Elizabeth MacLeod stop it.

Reduced Rates Offered to Students For Tickets to Red and White Revue

WITH scarcely a week left before the opening night of "13th Nightie," the thirteenth edition of the Red and White Revue, which is scheduled to open next Wednesday, every department connected with the production of the show is working smoothly at top speed. John Kennedy, the producer, announced.

Tickets are now on sale in the Box Office of the Union, and appreciable reductions are being allowed for students. Choice seats for each of the performances Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, and Saturday matinees are still to be had, and reservations should be made early. The advance sale of tickets, which began on Tuesday, was reported distinctly encouraging.

Superstitious Symphony "13th Nightie" could almost be termed a superstitious symphony. It is the 13th edition, opening March 13th, and consists of 13 scenes. Two comely choruses, the Choral and Operatic Society, and Glee Club, and many talented song and dance soloists will be featured in addition to a plot that is guaranteed to bring a smile to the face of even the grumpiest.

Plot and counter-plot, cabal, murder, suicide, political strife, love and other such calamities are blended to give the story of King Gromadaza XIII's troubles a riotous angle. Herr Heckler, leader of the Nightshirt Party makes things hot for the King and his Pyjamas, and a cruise on the H.M.S. Indefensible with the royal family follows. Mrs. Guggenheimer, a rich heiress, is murdered, her jewels stolen.

Opposition Defeats Conservative Party

Coeds Declared Successful in Mock Election Campaign

Tuesday evening, woman was declared successful in her stand for her rights. The Ballroom of the McGill Union was the scene of a Mock Election Campaign in which a group of coeds, under the direction of Eileen Crutchlow, as Leader of the Liberal Opposition, defeated the male forces of Allan Anderson's Conservative party. Such was the appeal of the Liberals that a Conservative was won over to their side and a woman was made Prime Minister.

Assisting Eileen Crutchlow were Geraldine Breitzke, Ruth Cohen and Margaret Clare. In Allan Anderson's group were Melville Davidson, Ivor Williams, with Edmund Gordon, Charles Lapitsky and John Drummond as independents. J. Winston Kerr occupied the chair.

German Club Meets

Mr. Andraea Speaks in Union Tonight

Tonight, at 8.00 o'clock the German club gathers in the Union to hear the guest speaker, Mr. Andraea, who has just returned from Germany, where he has been in the service of Chemicals, Limited. The executive of the Club considers that it has been extremely fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. Andraea, who, it is understood, has a great deal of interesting material at his disposal.

The executive expects that it will be able to continue this plan of obtaining the services of outstanding speakers, on topics of interest to the German Club.

Porto Ricans Lead Government Forces In Mock Parliament

To be held Friday in Union Ballroom

RETURN VISIT

McGill Team Debated at Porto Rico Three Years Ago

PROBLEMS of Fascism will be placed before the audience of the Debating Union's Mock Parliament Friday at 8.15 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, when debaters from Porto Rico and McGill present the motion "That this house approves the extension of Fascism." Arturo Morales-Carrión, of Porto Rico, will be Prime Minister, supported by Otto Riefkohl, Porto Rico and Henry Schafhausen, McGill. The Opposition will be led by Mel Doig, McGill, aided by Francesco Ponsa, Porto Rico, and Morton Godine, McGill.

The Porto Rican team has been touring the United States and Canada. They have debated at such colleges as Yale, Cornell, the University of New Brunswick, Middlebury, and Vermont. This is the second time that a team from this country has visited McGill. In the fall of 1930 they debated here while a year later a McGill team composed of J. Alex Edmison, Carl Goldenberg, and Fred Stone visited Porto Rico. The present trip is in the nature of a return visit for this.

Members of Debating Society Carrión, Riefkohl, and Ponsa are all prominent members of the University of Porto Rico's Debating Society. Schafhausen and Doig are both at present candidates for the Presidency of the McGill Debating Union, while Godine won the Bovey Shield contest, emblematic of the debating championship among newcomers to the University.

No decision will be given between the representatives of the two colleges, as each team is composed of men from both. The audience will vote on the subject at the conclusion of the Parliament. Ken Baker, President of the Debating Union, will be in the chair.

McGill Mechanical Society Plans Trip

To Visit Beauharnois Paper Mills Saturday

Arrangements have been completed by the executive of the McGill Mechanical Club through the kindness of Dr. Wyatt-Johnston, director of the Forest Products Laboratories, for the final trip on the club's program this season. Next Saturday afternoon the Beauharnois plant of the Howard Smith Paper Mills will be visited, and later in the afternoon the members will be guests of the Beauharnois Power Co.

Details of the trip were completed last night when Dr. Johnston received word from the above companies that they would be glad to be hosts to the Club. A thirty passenger bus has been hired which will leave the Engineering Building at 1.00 p.m. sharp.

Members and others interested will meet in Room 33, Engineering Building, at 11.00 a.m., when Dr. Johnston will deliver an illustrated lecture on the close link between the paper business and mechanical engineering. An hour will be allowed for lunch before the bus leaves for the plant. A charge of seventy-five cents will be collected for transportation.

Due to the unusual features of this trip a great show of interest is expected, and all those who desire a place in the bus should notify those in charge as soon as possible. This may be done by getting in touch with Jason Ingham fourth year; Pete Gillea, third year; or Doug Hamilton, first year.

Labour Club Hears New Deal Discussed

Angus MacInnis, M.P., Makes
Second Visit Here

"Bennett's Social Reform" will be the subject when Angus MacInnis, M.P., speaks before the Labour Club in Strathcona Hall at 8.30 p.m. tonight. Mr. MacInnis, who is the federal member for Vancouver, B.C., visited this University on one occasion last year, when he was accompanied by his wife, a daughter of J. S. Woodsworth, M.P.

At this lecture, held under the joint auspices of the Labour Club and the S.C.M., the speaker will discuss the Prime Minister's proposed reforms and their probable effect on the troubles they seek to remedy.

The executives of the two cooperating societies have made plans to secure outstanding speakers of a like calibre to deal with other aspects of Premier Bennett's proposed Social Reform. Further announcements in this regard will appear shortly.

Revue Committee Announces Plans For Annual Dance

Function Will be Held in Red Room of Windsor
Hotel

FOLLOWING the precedent set last year, the price of this year's Revue Dance has been kept as low as possible. The committee has completed arrangements that will permit it to offer tickets at the same cost as last year; that is, $4.25 per couple. This year the dance will be held at the Windsor Hotel, where the ball room and the Rose Room have been obtained.

As in other years, all the principals of the Red and White Revue cast will be there, as well as a great many of those who have taken part in the different departments of the Revue Organization. During the evening, the orchestra will play different selections from the Revue music, and a number of scenes and dances from the Revue will be given. The

Dean Played Selections Before Historical Clubs

Selections from the works of noted composers were the highlight of Tuesday evening's program when Dean Clarke, of the McGill Conservatorium of Music, spoke before a joint meeting of the R.V.C. Historical Club and the McGill Historical Club on "The History of Pianoforte Music."

Dean Clarke's selections, which he played on the piano, included: "O Mistress Myne" by William Byrd, and "La Rondine" by Couperin. Both composers belonged to the Elizabethan Era when the only instruments in use were the harpsichord, the virginal, and the spinnet. Hence compositions were limited in scope, being merely variations on themes.

Dean Clarke also played some compositions of Brahms and Bach, who represent a later and more advanced period in the history of music. The instrument now used was called a clavichord, being an intermediate stage between the stringed instrument and the modern piano.

Modern composition, which includes both harmony and melody, was made possible with the much greater scope afforded by the piano. In this class of work, Dr. Clarke played; a sonata by Scarlatti; a selection from Beethoven; the melody in F major by Chopin; compositions of Schumann and Schubert; and the Sonatine by Ravel.

The President Of The Students' Society

THE President of the Students' Society fills one of the highest and possibly one of the hardest undergraduate positions at McGill. It is a position which calls for much time, energy and initiative on the part of the man elected. The President represents the Students' Society on all public occasions and it is his duty to convoke and preside over all meetings of the Students' Society. The chief work of the President is presiding over the meetings of the Students' Executive Council. This Council controls all the undergraduate activities on the Campus. Besides presiding over these meetings he is a member of all special committees appointed by the Council.

Naturally the foregoing duties are fairly well appreciated by the average student, but there are others, which while not so well known to the undergraduate are as important and require a great deal of time. It is essential that the President be familiar with the athletic policy of the University for he is not only a member of the Athletics' Board, but is chairman of its Executive Council. In order that there may be some connection between the Graduates' Society and the Students' Society the President is also a member of the Executive Council of the Graduates' Society.

Thus it is seen that the position is one which calls for an intimate knowledge of the management and finance of all the various clubs and organizations on the Campus and the Athletics in the University. It is the duty of the President to see that the programs of the various societies on the Campus are carried out as they should be, in the interests of the whole Students' Society, and not in the interests of a small clique as has been done occasionally in the past.

The President will have to deal with many delicate situations arising between the various organizations, between the students and the Faculty and between the students and the general public. He should be a man endowed with tact and savoir-faire; he should be a man with vision—one who will appreciate the requirements of the different college organizations and one who will be able to conduct the affairs of the undergraduates in the best interests of the whole student body.

In tomorrow's elections every undergraduate—whether male or female—has a vote for this particular position. On this occasion let each and every student carefully consider the two candidates and then vote for the man he or she thinks best suited for this position.

Congratulations

TWO members of the staff at McGill have been the recipients of high honours during the past week. Professor E. W. Archibald, director of the Department of Surgery, was made honorary Fellow of the Royal Australian College of Surgeons, as a reward for his work in that field.

Dr. E. G. D. Murray, of the Department of Bacteriology, was called upon to make an urgent flight to Detroit in an attempt to save the life of an eight-year-old boy suffering from a particularly virulent blood disease which is usually fatal. The only supply of serum available was at McGill, where Dr. Murray had been working with it. At the latest reports the boy "was doing as well as could be expected."

These two incidents show us the respect with which the McGill Medical Faculty is regarded. The Daily, speaking for the student body, wishes to congratulate Drs. Archibald and Murray for the honours which they have received.

PANEGYRICUS

By McParfootin

Glorifying, But Horrifying

A JADED young man, wearied of the rigors of this mortal existence of ours, was once heard clamoring for an asexual world, composed exclusively of inconsequential its. He expressed the pious hope that some day humanity would return to the amoeba stage, and germinate by fission or some equally harmless process. Evidently he had never seen the Folies. Neither have we, but this preamble is apropos the current invasion of Montreal by Mrs. Florence Ziegfeld, who is carrying on her late hubby's tradition of glorifying the American Girl, while horrifying the local critics.

According to varied reports, audiences here are much the same as anywhere else. They are inordinately interested in "Art" and of course, music, but primarily in "Art." That is why you will find freshmen, and others, poring over the great pictorial masterpieces of the past, furtively examining that interesting state of semi-deshabille or leas, which has its artistic side to say the least. In any event, the front row will inevitably have its share of bald heads and opera glasses, while endless lines will throng the stage entrance after the show, ostensibly for the purpose of shaking the hand of one of the chorines. At least, Robert Benchley has said of the chorines this year: "They may not have been glorified, but they're awfully good company!" Three being a crowd, and yours truly being in the usual, shall we say, impecunious state, he too pines for uncellularity. Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to see Folies.

Martyred Martlets

IT HAS come to our knowledge that there is one club on the campus about whose existence we have been completely oblivious. We refer to the Martlet Society whose raison d'être we succeeded in unearthing with some difficulty. According to judicious inquiry it transpires that this society is not composed of queer birds, or anything. It is merely a delightful mutual admiration affair. Membership is restricted and its martlets gather periodically and eat together. That it seems to be all the society does. They occasionally meet to eat, and they pick those with whom they are to eat. No other purpose whatsoever motivates them, which is a good thing. It's refreshing to come across some sort of organization, these days, which has no purpose whatsoever, and doesn't even pretend to have a purpose. Would that I were a Martlet, and anyhow, when I'm hungry, I can eat in the Union Cafeteria if I have the money. Excuse the editorial "we."

A Library... or a Nursery?

BIBLIOPHILES generally, and the occasional student interested in literature and in books that he isn't compelled to read, were transported to the pinnacle of joy when the Carnegie Library was opened in the Arts Building last year. Here at last was an opportunity close at hand, where students could drop in for an occasional hour, pick a book off the shelves at random, and read in peace and comfort. Unfortunately this ideal has not been realized to its fullest extent.

To be sure, the books are there, and the collection is superb. True enough, the students are not, as a rule backward in making use of those books. But the hope that this nook in the building would prove a refuge for those who had the odd hour to spare, and who were not particularly keen on being suffocated in the smoking room—that hope, alas, has yet to be realized.

It has transpired that the Carnegie has a dual purpose, and this fact, of course is not news. In addition to housing that priceless collection of contemporary literature, it serves as a freshman reading room. This latter is a necessary function—we all were freshmen once. But this leaves little room for people who just want to read. Any casual explorer will almost any morning find every available seat occupied by the industrious frosh, a noble thing, forsooth. Yours truly has found that to get within miles of a shelf, he must climb over legs and chairs, and freshies, and then get trampled on in return. If he has determined to read amid the comparative quiet, he must sit on the floor, which isn't dignified. Then too he must obediently listen to the occasional pencil taps, and the punctilious "Quiet Please!" At which command we at once put our hands behind our back and sit up straight. Otherwise we might have to stay in after school.

In other words, would it be utterly impossible to let the freshmen have a reading room of their own?

Don't Be Nasty!

SOMEBODY or other was heard to remark, the other day, while speaking of "13th Night," that in most Revues, the puns and gags were ladled out by the ton. We were always under the impression that they were composed by the gallon (or is it the quart?).

A Lament

THIS college life gets on my nerves, Whenever any sap observes That columnists at least should be prolific, For, during dear old March and Apr., Although there's reams and reams of paper, The dearth of worthwhile news is just terrific! To keep the gaping readers reading, The anguished call of Page Two heeding. A columnist must sweat to be original, To amuse the carping cynics, With intellectual calisthenics, And give them dope that we would learn virginal.

And we sit and contemplate While our effusions antedate The Ark of Noah and the Holy Bible, But we can sigh with gay relief, Expecting a drab farewell wrier, When two weeks hence you'll lose your old reliable.

MUSIC

Splendid Danseuse Coming

ON MONDAY next, March 11th, the Danish-Japanese danseuse, Nini Theilade, will appear on the stage of the Imperial Theatre in a programme of interpretive dancing. This beautiful young artist, who is at present only nineteen, was brought before the public five years ago by none other than Paviola. She has attracted great attention throughout Europe for her work under Max Reinhardt.

The opportunity to enjoy first rate dancing is a welcome one for Montreal. Nini Theilade's record to date indicates more than ordinary talent. Theilade is being brought here by Mrs. B. D. Simpson, Room 1002, Mount Royal Hotel.

AIRING THE AIR WAVES

BY ELENPY

Welcome, Lapides

SOME time ago we bemoaned the fact that Lou Holtz was leaving the air waves for the vaudeville stage. We are now ready to welcome him back to radio. We have just received news that Lou Holtz has already completed his previous engagement, and is returning to the air. His first appearance on the new program will be tonight at 10.00 p.m., when he will be heard with Paul Whiteman on the Kraft program, over an NBC network. Lou Holtz is noted for his dialect, which by the way he can change to suit the requirements of the program. His best-known impersonation is that of the now-famous Sam Lapides. The return to the air of this beloved character will doubtless be appreciated by many of his former admirers. Henceforth this comedian will be a regular member of the Whiteman cast, and will continue to delight the many listeners on all future programs.

Joe Cook Is Back

THERE is another man who has made a name for himself in radio, and then had to leave the ether for the stage. That man is Joe Cook. In the past Joe Cook was the proprietor of a back yard pin alley, ran away from home to join a circus, and later on became the star of "Rain or Shine," a show with a circus background. He also starred in "Fine and Dandy" and other Broadway successes. He had a one-man show in which he did everything.

In the end he landed in radio. Here his success was immediate, and obtained a great following among the listeners. Six months ago he had to give up radio in order to get ready for a show on Broadway in which he is to star this coming spring. However, now that the show is well in hand he has time to get back to radio, and he has accepted the offer to run a variety entertainment on the air for the Goodrich Company. He will now head the list of a large number of entertainers who will appear in the "Circus Night in Silvertown" program, whose premiere will take place tomorrow at 10.00 p.m. on an NBC network.

Appearing with Joe Cook on this program will be such famous radio personalities as B. A. Rolfe and his orchestra, Tim and Irene, Phil Ducey, Lucy Monroe, and Peg La Centre. All these radio stars will be featured regularly on this new program which promises to be a treat.

Metropolitan Opera

WE DON'T know whether radio editors are supposed to be asleep all afternoon, and just wake in the evening to hear the late programs, or vice versa; and it is because we don't know that we listen to both kinds. Another thing which some of our readers don't know, (and say so) is that we didn't write about the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts up to now because we thought that it was useless to write about them. It was our idea that every student, no matter how unmusical, could still find time enough, and inclination enough, and interest enough to listen to these broadcasts. Alas, how we were mistaken! It appears that there are large numbers of students at this university who not only are not making any effort to hear these programs, but are actually changing the station when they have the opportunity to do so without anyone complaining! We do not stand up here to champion the cause of good music, neither do we wish to educate these people, but we do feel that, when a student of a great institution of learning like McGill refuses to listen to an operatic broadcast, nay, even prefers jazz to such a broadcast to the extent of switching on the former, it is high time that we began thinking about the efficacy of our educational system. There must be something wrong somewhere when a university student has his higher artistic sensibilities stunted to such an extent. Something must be done!

Noel Coward Cavalcade

ON SATURDAY night the regular program conducted by Romy will feature a "cavalcade" dedicated to Noel Coward. The guest star on this program, which by the way comes on at 8.00 p.m. on a CBS network, will be the international famous Canadian comedienne, Beatrice Lillie. Miss Lillie (Lady Peel) is a very great friend of Mr. Coward. They have played together in "This Year of Grace," of which Mr. Coward was the author. "Charlot's Revue" which starred Miss Lillie was also partly written by Noel Coward. Some of Miss Lillie's most famous songs, such as "Mad Dogs and Englishmen" and "Girl of My Dreams in California" were written for her by Mr. Coward. Miss Lillie, the foremost interpreter of Coward's songs, will sing the most famous of these.

THE LIBRARY

SCHOOL OF HIGHER COMMERCIAL STUDIES

THE School of Higher Commercial Studies has an extremely interesting Economics Library. Its 32,000 odd volumes, its numerous year-books and periodicals, all of them carefully catalogued, provide a complete reference library for the business man, merchant or industrialist as well as for the members of the general public. The hundreds of thousands of filing-cards are classified under the headings of: administration, accountancy, agriculture, commerce, education, finance, geography, history, industry, insurance, legislation, literature, marine, philosophy, political economy, science, sociology, statistics, technology and transport.

The library is constantly receiving many new works. Among such during the last month the following have been in demand: A work of M. Henry Bordeaux, who was a member of the French Delegation on the occasion of the Gaspé Festival, namely Nouvelle et Vieille France. Two works on Banking: Treasuries and Central Banks by D. W. Dodwell, and Le Systeme bancaire anglais et la place de Londres by R. J. Trupitil. A new edition of Dicksee's Auditing by S. W. Rowland. Auditing — A Practical Manual for Auditors—a volume of more than 1,000 pages. The following also should be mentioned: Japon, 1934, a study of the domestic and foreign policy of that country, written by M. Lachin, Moscow 1911-1933, or the memoirs of the English engineer, Allan Monkhouse, tried by the Soviet Courts for espionage. Government Experimentation in Business by W. M. Persons. Le probleme du commerce international by Firmin Cules. Le siecle du corporatisme, doctrine du corporatisme integral by M. Manolesco. Finally, an interesting study by Pierre Charignan on Investment Trusts and Holdings in relation with individual savings and the general interest: Societes de placement et societes de controle.

Among the 800 odd periodicals which the library receives from month to month, we may mention: Questions du jour, a quarterly review each number of which gives the opinion of different writers on the same economic subject. Annuaire di statistica e di economia—a publication of the Institute of Economic and Commercial Science of Genoa. Plaisir de France, an illustrated monthly, discussing art, furniture, gardens, tours, etc. L'Artisan Liturgique, a quarterly review of applied religious art. The Review of Economic Studies, published in London with the idea of making known the works of the younger English economists. The Far Eastern Review—a monthly review of Far Eastern Trade, Finance and Engineering. Pour Gagner plus, a general review of business organization, accountancy, publicity, and applied business psychology. Algeria, a monthly review with illustrations edited by the Algerian Office of Economics and Travel. Finally, a new periodical: Le Document, the first number of which is dedicated to the U.R.S.S.

The Library of the School of Higher Commercial Studies is located at 530 LaSalle Street East. It is open to the public every week day from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission free.

Basketball Squad End Season With Loss In Dodd's Cup Competition

Red Five Suffers 33-21 Defeat By N.D.G. Outfit

Climax, Most Disastrous Season in Years — Small and Young Star in Last Game of College Careers—N.D.G. Team Succeeds Nationale as City Champs—Gormley Proves High Scorer For McGill

MCGILL'S senior basketball squad climaxed their most disastrous season in years by failing in their efforts to secure possession of the Dodds Cup, emblematic of the City Championship. Showing indications of lack of practice McGill's standard bearers went down to a 33-21 defeat at the hands of the N.D.G. five at Community Hall last night.

In dropping last night's encounter the Red outfit concluded a season which saw them in succession, lose all games played in the Intercollegiate League. What undoubtedly accounted, in part, for this latest loss was the evident non-senior caliber of the Red substitutes, none of whom were successful in point scoring.

Play Last Games
Don Young and Don Small, the captain, playing their last game for McGill worked like trojans but found the basket quite elusive when close shots presented themselves. Next year's aggregation will undoubtedly feel the loss of these two Red stalwarts.

McGill were the first to score a basket, but the N.D.G. outfit, with Allan the spearhead, slowly brought pressure to bear, and half-time ended with McGill on the short end of a 13-11 score.

The closest margin which McGill were able to get within N.D.G. score, in the second period, was a 17-15 score, with a few minutes of the second half played.

With but five minutes of play in the game remaining, Lennie Hutton, N.D.G. standby, was disqualified from further participation, because of a foul rule. The game ended, however, with McGill unable to capitalize on this opportunity.

McGill Hoopsters Defeat U. of M. In Intermediate Game

Team Qualifies to Meet Bishops For Title

TIE SCORE AT HALF

LAUNCHING a determined offensive in the second half of their game with U. of M. on Tuesday night, McGill's intermediate basketball team overcame the French collegians' early lead to win out by a decisive 23-15 score at the Nationale gym. Besides being a scheduled M.B.L. Intermediate "A" tilt, it also decided the opponents for Bishop's in the play-offs for the championship of the Intermediate Intercollegiate League. The Red Seconds will play a home-and-home series with the Lennoxville boys, to commence probably next week.

U. of M. caught the Redmen off their guard with a speedy opening attack, Katz, Cohen and Coshof netting field goals to put them ahead 6-0 within three minutes. McGill steadied, however, and a nice long shot by Rutherford, together with free shots by Schofield and Conklin, brought the score up to 6-4. The game was slowing down somewhat from its dizzy opening pace, and close checking under the baskets resulted in numerous penalties. Katz sank a loop shot, but Corrigan came back with a long shot to make it 8-8, with eight and a half minutes to play.

Server Ties Score
U. of M. called time out, and immediately after Scrivner and Levites went on. Scrivner soon made his presence felt, tying the score with a neat basket from close in. With five minutes to go, Rutherford put the Redmen ahead with a long shot, and Greenblatt followed it up by breaking away alone for a field goal to make the count 12-8. Baskets by Coshof and Rudner just before the whistle brought the half-time score to 12 all.

The second half again opened fast, but this time it was McGill that provided the scoring punch. Conklin netted a basket soon after the start, and Rutherford sank a neat long shot to put the Redmen ahead 16-12. With seven minutes gone, Conklin scored again, and U. of M. called time out to recover from this setback. The narrow floor made for a great deal of close checking around the baskets, and the tight play was resulting in little scoring. Schofield netted a nice loop shot, and Rutherford made it 21-12 with a free shot. With four minutes to go, Cohen scored a free throw, and Katz followed it up with U. of M.'s first basket of the half. Schofield again scored before the final whistle to make the count 23-15.

Redmen Better Team
The two teams looked just about evenly matched in the first period, but a good pep talk by Coach Van Wagner at half-time evidently did wonders for the Red youngsters. They came back with an attack that had Eddie Grounau's men pinned in their own half most of the period. Schofield and Conklin led the forwards with five points apiece, while Scrivner and

Many aspirants have been turning out and considerable competition is being provided. Bert Light has issued a call for any others interested to put in an appearance.

Hugh Savage And Shapiro Selected To Captain Teams

Head of McGill Swimming and Polo Teams Respectively

Next year's officers of the McGill Swimming Club were selected at a meeting of that organization on Monday evening. Hugh Savage was chosen captain of the swimming team while Lorne Shapiro secured that same honor for the Senior water-polo team.

After a vote of thanks to George Vickerson, coach of the teams was made, Charlie Pinco, manager of the swimming and polo squads, was presented with a token of appreciation for his work during the season. Plans for the coming season were discussed and it was proposed that the Red Birds Swimming team should combine with the McGill team for the purpose of city competitions. This plan was deferred to a later meeting.

After two years' absence from College during which period he was studying at Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar, Munro Bourne will return to McGill again next season. It was announced at the meeting. As a Canadian Olympic swimmer Munro's presence will do much to brighten prospects for next year's team.

Swimming practices are still being held and the K. of C. tank is open to McGill men every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons at 5:30 p.m. It is hoped that a large number of students will avail themselves of this opportunity to swim.

Greenblatt played good ball in the last half. Rutherford played a fine game on the defence and also scored five points. Corrigan, captain of the squad, played steadily and nailed up well with Rutherford on the defence.

Katz was the kingpin of the U. of M. attack, netting three field goals in all and giving a good display of play-making in the first half. Larry Mathieu, well-known for his gridiron accomplishments with the M. F. C., played a good game at guard for the French collegians. The game was ably handled by Doug Jones.

Stage Set For Dominion Track Meet Tomorrow

Les Wade Enters Mile Run — McGill Rests Hopes on Seven Entrants. — Outstanding American Track Stars Competing — Toronto and Hamilton Clubs Strongly Represented — Records Expected to go by Boards

AT eight p.m. tomorrow evening at the Forum will be staged what might conceivably be regarded in future years as the outstanding event in Canadian Indoor Sports' history — the Dominion Indoor Track and Field Championship. The field will be an International affair with the best that Canada and the United States can offer in the way of track athletes being in attendance.

Heading the list of American entrants is Glenn Cunningham, conceded the outstanding miler in the United States. George Spitz and the bespectacled Harold Osborne have both signified their intention of competing in the high jump. Joe McCluskey and Frank Crowley, formerly of Fordham and Manhattan Colleges respectively and rated as the premier two mile runners in the United States will attempt to set a Canadian mark in this event. Glen Dawson is scheduled to enter the mile, with Elton Brown and Chuck Hornbostel running the 880.

Wade Enters

Les Wade, whom many close observers of the sport, rank as Canada's outstanding contribution to the mile run, has also entered tomorrow's tournament. Running against men of the reputation of Cunningham and Dawson, the mile event should be the climax in the evening's entertainment. Sammy Richardson, the Toronto schoolboy who leaped into athletic prominence through his spectacular victory in the broad jump in the British Empire Games will also be on hand in an attempt to consolidate his claim as Canada's premier broad jumper. In the 440 yard event Ray Lewis of Hamilton should provide strenuous opposition. The Achilles Club of Toronto and the Hamilton Athletic Club will also have further entrants.

McGill Enter Seven

In tomorrow's tournament McGill will be represented by seven students—Edwards, Nobbs, Worrall, Amaron, Todd, Stote and Record. The first four runners will appear in the Relay, with Worrall also scheduled to do timber-topping duty along with Record. Todd and Stote will confine themselves to the longer distances.

This is only a partial survey of the innumerable entrants in this Dominion Indoor meet. Unquestionably with such an outstanding field several Canadian records may be expected to go by the boards.

Educational Expert Speaks On Merits Of Mental Hygiene

Dr. Washburne of Winnetka, Addresses Teachers' Meeting

METHODS SUCCESSFUL

School Children Given Feeling Of Security And Outlet For Self Expression

IN CANADA and the United States, one person in twenty-five ends his life in an insane asylum, stated Dr. C. W. Washburne, B.A., Ed.D., in his address in "The Organization of the School in the Light of Mental Hygiene," given in the High School of Montreal last Tuesday. This lecture was the first of three on "Mental Hygiene and Education" which are presented under the auspices of the Department of Public Health and Preventive Medicine of McGill University.

Of these cases a great many are caused or aggravated by maladjustment at school and in the home and could be prevented by the methods of mental hygiene which Dr. Washburne is using in the schools of Winnetka, Illinois, in the capacity of Superintendent of Schools.

Chief Aim
The chief aim of mental hygiene is the education of the child. The educational systems in use in most schools today give the child a feeling of insecurity detrimental to mind and health, give no opportunity for self-expression and originality, and neglect almost entirely the social side of school life.

In the schools at Winnetka, great progress has been made in eliminating these evils. In order to give the children a feeling of security, the classrooms are made as home-like as possible, with pleasant colour schemes, plants, pictures, etc.; the children are individually examined and their mental age determined and a suitable curriculum set. Their mental growth is periodically noted, and marks are given to the child in terms of what may be expected from his stage of mental development. In this way there is no false competition, no haunting fear of failure for backward students and no time wasted by the teacher in trying to teach work too hard for the children.

Outlet Needed
The need for an outlet for self-expression and the urge to create, is important. Repression of these desires may lead to mental illness. The most common evidence of this need is the disorderliness in classrooms when the teacher is absent. A normal amount of opportunity for self-expression will do away with this trouble. The solution lies in a greater emphasis on work such as wood-working, art, music, dramatics, nature-work, etc.

The third need is that of socializing the child, of showing him that he is an integral part of society. In the traditional school, communication between the children is forbidden, and any form of co-operation between pupils is discouraged. The children must be given an opportunity to think and act co-operatively. They must feel that they are citizens of a school community. If the numerous unnecessary things, on the average school curriculum, are eliminated, there is plenty of time for extra work of this kind.

There are, of course, times when even these enlightened methods fail, when the teachers have "problem" children. To deal with these troubles, there is a special administrative council to advise the teachers, to make careful study of stubborn cases where medical and psychology experts and the parents are called in, to provide special courses for teachers and parents, and to co-operate in every way with the administration.

At the conclusion of Dr. Washburne's address, Dr. W. T. Mitchell of McGill thanked the speaker.

Correspondence

The Editor,
Dear Sir:—

I have read with great interest the letter of Mr. Layton, and the replies printed in the columns of the "Daily." The arguments which he presents against the usefulness and constructiveness of peace movements are by him substantiated by an appeal to the psychology of hate and fear and by an even stronger appeal for the preservation of patriotism, courage, etc., through those glorious blessings of Providence upon mankind, the thousands of Wars in history.

Thanks only to the latter, man has been enabled to remain master of the world, in a position to continue his special movement on his hind legs without the support of his two other limbs. Without this, man might have undergone a biological as well as a moral degeneration, and returned to the habits and posture of his ancestors, millions of years ago. How thankful we ought to be to Providence for the careful consideration it has given to mankind's well-being, by supplying him with such powerful and arousing instruments, Wars and Battles.

I should like in attempting to answer Mr. Layton's objections to appeal

Prospective Presidents Air Views In Campaign

Baker's Platform

Organizations under the jurisdiction of the Council are to a great extent free in their choice of policies, subject always to the approval of that body. But there are one or two subjects on which I should like to express my views.

The first is athletics. In my opinion greater emphasis should be placed upon intra mural activity. While this important branch of athletics has not been neglected in the past there is still great scope for development. Furthermore, I am convinced that to achieve this object there should be greater student control. I believe that a student-athletic board of a representative nature should be entrusted with this function. In this way centralization would be achieved and the machinery set up through which encouragement and direction could be given to Campus athletics. In this field, at least, students have a right to expect substantial personal returns from the investment of their athletic fee. In the event of my being elected I would do my best to promote its fulfillment.

There is one tendency among students in Campus activities which I feel should be discouraged. It takes the form of dabbling in every conceivable activity in which there is the allure of office holding. The result is the neglect of studies as well as the less efficient management of each particular job. I would encourage the individual student to participate in one, or at most two, forms of activity, in the belief that both individual and collective benefit would result.

I can only say that in asking for the honour of being your President I am willing to use the experience I have gained in student life in the furtherance of your interests and to represent you on all occasions to the best of my ability.

KENNETH G. K. BAKER,

not to sentimentalize, but to something fairly logical, on his own grounds. I quote a few remarks from an article by Prof. Haldane: "It may be true that hate and fear are the root causes of war, but we shan't get rid of them in our time. If I were asked about the causes of fires in houses, I shouldn't tell you that the main cause was oxygen in the air, because that is outside our control. I should talk about the use of too much wood in the building, about carelessness with matches and cigarettes, and lastly about our system of insurance, which makes fires a source of profit for some people. I can't open a newspaper without finding an advertisement intended to frighten me into buying toothpaste or pills."

"The armament makers are a little more subtle in their methods, but that is all. After all, common sense tells you that when you find an evil you should inquire 'who is making money out of it' and then you won't be far off its cause. If you want to catch fire-raiders, you find out who is making money out of fires; if you want to catch war-raiders, find out who is making money out of wars and run more of wars."

"I think that if more people had this text in mind they wouldn't be quite so certain that armament shareholders would never obstruct disarmament. Of course, every shareholder in an armament factory does not go about clamoring for war. But he or she realizes that, if the promises to disarm, made on behalf of the nations in the Covenant, were carried out, it would mean a loss of income, and that a war, especially a nice little war on the other side of the world, would mean a financial gain."

"Let us see who else besides the armament firms has an interest in war. Perhaps we haven't been quite fair to them. After all, an army needs boots and breeches as well as guns. It gets better food than the civilian population. It needs transport. If you talk during a period of great depression, such as 1931, with a man who is engaged in financing international trade, he will often say something of this kind: 'I hate to say it, but you know a war would set the wheels of business going again. Of course, I don't mean a war in which we are involved, but look how well the neutrals did in the Great War.'"

What I wish to point out is that given Mr. Layton will recognize that for some people war is economically and the results are astounding, to say the least. The scene in Paris, with the Folies Notson Bergeres, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the Monte Carlo incidents, the party strife, to say nothing of the clowning of Jack Waud, as the king, himself, give a somewhat hysterical tinge to "13th Nightie." Lorraine Tasker, whose stellar performance in "Autumn Crocus" literally had the audiences convulsed with laughter, plays the role of the Queen Mother. The part of the hissing heir-apparent, Little Rollo, is played by Walter Markham. Phyllis Jackson, as Princess Submarina, and John Gibbin, as Herr Heckler, are two other veteran Revue stars who will again be seen in leading roles.

and financially profitable. These people are the ones who start and even encourage wars. After the war has begun they appeal to courage, patriotism, etc., of the mass of people for support of their war plans.

While we must admit that if man were fundamentally a different sort of creature, with no fighting instinct at all, living in the habitat of some other universe, that war would be impossible, even at the instigation of the profit makers; we must recognize also that the average human being, as he is today constituted, will certainly refuse to fight in a battle which he knows is being waged only to bring huge profits to a few financiers.

It is exactly upon this point that we insist. If we convince the majority of the population that it is against their own "personal" and "selfish" interest to take any part in a war, then we are utilizing that same powerful and instinctive weapon which our friend believes to be the direct cause of war, as a mighty instrument for peace. For if our government, or any other, will have at its disposal no soldiers for their armies nor any workers to manufacture and transport arms for them, they will not be able, nor even think of, engaging in a war. Since this army of the masses of

The committee in charge of the dance consisted of John Riddell, Sammy Grisdale, Bob Nixon, Buffy Goodfellow, Rod Stove 1, Brodie Hicks, Harry Grimsdale, George Auld and Gordon Auld.

There are many who will want to go to the dance even if they do not go to the Revue. The names of the patrons will be made public in a day or two, as well as the orchestra also.

the people can be made stronger, in sheer physical force, than anything in the world, we feel confident that if those who are at all peace conscious get together and work with all their energy in building a peace army, supported not by guns and ammunition, but by the ideological force of conviction, that we can build a world without wars, where courage and patriotism will be manifested in channels other

Little Rollo And Submarina "Smile For The Birdie - ah!"

ABOARD the H.M.S. Indefensible, (en route for Moyse Hall) — March 5 — Little Rollo, heir apparent of Mongaza, and Princess Submarina faced a battery of photographers today without flinching, and the box score read: No hits, six puns, and 13 nighties. They are scheduled to make a four day appearance at Moyse Hall on March 13, 14, 15 and 16 in the Red and White Revue's extravaganza of mirth, melody and terpsichorean achievements known as "13th Nightie."

Submarina was wearing a Patou smile, while Little Rollo had little more on than a broad grin. The grin is by Saks, Fifth Ave. Both smile and grin will be the thing to wear this year, particularly if you happen to be so fortunate as to get hold of a couple of pasteboards to 13th Nightie, sometimes referred to as "All the World's a Stoooge," "The Shaming of the Crew," and only rarely as "Murder on the High Cs," because a diva, who turned out to be a belly flop, gets bumped off in scene four.

It is rumored that Rollo and Submarina are that way about each other, but high government officials from Mongaza vehemently deny it, saying that it's bound to be a June wedding. When asked what that had to do with the opening night March 13th, they replied that Heckler was planning a coup, but that the Queen Mother, Fanny insisted on a cabriolet.

King Gromadaza XIII was too drunk to make any coherent comment, and amused himself firing torpedoes from the poop deck, because, as he said, he couldn't stand divas who yodel! "Poop-peepa-doop, and Hey nenny nonny and a Hoochie-cha."

It is rumored that stowed away somewhere on board are two gorgeous choruses who will knock 'em cold when they get to Moyse Hall. Rumors were bandied about concerning a certain nightie chorus, and porter promenade which bid fair to take the town by storm. They have already been the indirect cause of three hurricanes while at sea.

The wireless operator reports an ominous message received from Adolf Heckler, leader of the Nighties: "Will wagger my 13th nightie stop that you can't start anything. Fanny mustn't get cabriolet, Stop. Coup sure to come off. Love and dynamite, your own little Adolf."
